Review Notes →

Did we meet the goals we wanted to achieve?

The team reviewed each of the the stories that we assigned ourselves. We discussed how we rearranged what our sprint process looks like after receiving feedback our team went through our two stories and showcased what has been done for them, each person showcased and discussed what they did for each of their assigned tasks. Discussed problems that occurred during the sprint and how we tackled them.

Retrospective Review →

Did our approach to the scrum process satisfy everyone? Are we satisfied with the amount of meetings that we are holding per week, the amount of work we are doing per week, what we speak about during the meetings and the length of the meetings.

Thus far the team agrees that how we are implementing the scrum process is good. The team agrees that the amount of meetings are good to ensure that we are on track for each one of our sprints, meeting three times a week serves as a good check in for everyone to give updates on what they are doing and present problems that they are facing while working on their specific tasks. Team is also satisfied with what we are discussing during the meetings and the length of them.

Are we implementing our tools in the best way and using them to effectively?

The tools that we are using to aid in our project are Discord, GitHub, Jira, Figma. Ashley mentioned that she would like for the Jira board to be updated more regularly so it can be more reflective of where we are in each of our stories and tasks. However the group feels that for the amount of work being done, the Jira is not fully reflective of what each member has been done. Ben D would like the Jira tickets to be more descriptive as to what it is that each task is implementing and so on. Ashley mentioned that while she thinks we are using the Figma well, labelling of each of the pages above them would be helpful to ensure everyone knows what page it is that they are viewing. Ben C also mentioned that how the pages are laid out on Figma we could better organize them.

Comments the group would like to hare on how they will be improving in the next sprint.

In terms on of time management, how to be more productive, how can we better communicate as a group.

In the next sprint Braden would like to take on more tasks then he had in the first sprint to better contribute to the group. Ben D mentioned he would also like to have more tasks assigned to him during the next sprint, as our first sprint was fairly light compared to what we need to do. He also mentioned he would like to improve productivity by working on the his tasks an hour a day to better serve his tasks and meet deadlines. He would also like to add more stories and tasks in general to our sprints compared to the two stories that we had for the first sprint.

Are there other thoughts that the group would like to add to to the review?

Ben D likes the amount of communication that is happening within the group and the progress that is being made towards the project.
